76	The summary emails with the updates in different areas are really helpful - I nearly always click on one of the links to be directed to the more complete information on the website. I would love to receive reminders to check in on the IFNA website, to be honest. The reason I use LinkedIn and ResearchGate as often as I do, is that I receive emails every 3-7 days indicating that there are posts / new connections that might be of interest to me. That prompts me to go to the website. To be honest, without a prompt? I'm much less likely to visit a website regularly. There are simply so many that I need to keep up with, that I	Feb 15, 2014 3:51 PM

1	Easily accessible Regularly updated	Mar 15, 2014 12:10 AM
2	easier navigation	Mar 14, 2014 8:41 PM
3	I am sorry, I do not have any good idea at this point.	Mar 14, 2014 6:12 PM
4	I would like watch a free sample of some webinar through IFNA websites	Mar 14, 2014 2:58 PM
5	I would appreciate to have access to web information about research & education collaboration, exchanges, global projects	Mar 14, 2014 7:05 AM
6	RNAO and OIIQ	Mar 10, 2014 5:04 AM
7	Divulgation of Family Nursing events around the world	Mar 8, 2014 11:15 AM
8	I think that all members should be required to set up a profile as prerequisite to using the site, so that we have a better representation. Info representative of other family nursing perspectives and science beyond the Calgary Models - other perspectives need to be as expanded as info on Calgary work exists Way for a country representative to provide regular info as to what is happening in Germany, South Africa, New Zealand, Thailand, Japan, USA, Canada and other countries that could be reported on every 3 months or so. Practice, education & research developments, as well as honors for family nurses in the countries	Mar 8, 2014 10:41 AM
9	The website is not exactly user friendly, but it has improved over the past few years. I believe the forums should be available when we first sign in. Academy of Medical Surgical Nursing is a good website, so you might look at that. It may require login for full function, however. Sigma Theta Tau is notoriously difficult to navigate, so that would be an example of a "bad" website.	Mar 7, 2014 6:43 PM
10	No using site but plan to access site in near future.	Mar 7, 2014 3:01 PM
11	AWHONN; NLN	Mar 7, 2014 1:27 PM
12	Suggest that some of the revolving pictures show families-not sure if this is possible though. NAPNAP has nice site.	Mar 7, 2014 12:12 PM
13	a conection with other related organization	Mar 7, 2014 9:04 AM
14	Global Awareness Information including links to current and past issues Global outreach efforts of the organization including publications by the organization Specific links to all organizations active role in advocacy (things they are doing to make a difference within their community Bylaws, rules and regulations of the organization including organization chart showing links and structures within the organization Calendar of the Year showing the goals/expectations/activities of the organization Incentives to Join the organization as well as an appeal to prospective members	Feb 21, 2014 8:49 PM
15	Make the website iPad user friendly. Many of the interesting webinars are harder in time difference for participants from the southern hemisphere . However, understand there is only a ver small membership from the south!	Feb 21, 2014 6:39 PM

18	It looks very busy....lots of information	Feb 17, 2014 12:26 PM
19	Sites on advances in pedagogical approaches, research. Invitations to be involved in conducing a study with other IFNA members. Invitations to join IFNA interest groups. Getting email that members of group have posted so we can have a lively discussion. Streaming of past webinars. Thanks	Feb 16, 2014 2:33 PM
20	The overwhelming amount of information makes it difficult to get a first hand impression of IFNA and the important work which is going on. To make a profile and password for the websit is not easy and quick done	Feb 15, 2014 3:40 AM
21	I haven't checked the website for a very long time.	Feb 14, 2014 7:18 PM
